LITTLE BIT
on most anything

The lawyer put it this way: "I'd say you've got both cheeks on the horns of a dilemma."

While we don't have much of a stomach for goring, we have even less for a diatribe we witnessed last Thursday night at the Seaside City Council meeting.

Our first dilemma was whether to say anything at all about the distribe by Mayor Lou Haddad.

The laws of libel were written to protect a person not only from being defamed by another but also from suffering from a compounding of that defamation by a newspaper's repeating it.

We don't know if Mayor Haddad libeled Dick Hirschkind when he said why Hirschkind had been asked by City Manager Milt Farrell to resign as city engineer. A lawyer we consulted says it's on the borderline, which is where most libel is at and which is why most newspapers exercise utmost caution when deciding whether to print possible libelous statements.

Such caution was obviously exercised by the Monterey Peninsula Herald. Its story on the meeting said only that "Haddad then listed a variety of reasons why the action had been taken."

We can't disagree with the Herald's treatment of the story. Its approach spared Hirschkind. Or did it? Other parts of the story clearly indicated that the mayor's "reasons" were strong.

Our second dilemma was whether to report specifically those "reasons." Mindful that we've verged on the point of creating morbid curiosity, we shall say only that Haddad pointedly questioned Hirschkind's ability to do the city engineer's job.

We faced still another dilemma of sorts in bringing up the subject the week before the city election. Politics shouldn't enter this matter, and it isn't fair that we speak out on an extremely inflamatory subject when the parties to it will have no recourse for answering us before the election.

Nevertheless, we must say we were repulsed by Haddad's statements, and we must question his judgment in making them. After all, that's what we're going to vote about next week.

Haddad bared for us all his inability to handle the idea of the separation of powers of the city manager - council form of government. The mayor and council perform a policymaking role, and hire the city manager to administer that policy. His job of administering includes the hiring and firing of all city employees except the city attorney.

Haddad apparently hasn't been content to keep his hands out of the administration. In "defending" Farrell Thursday night, he destroyed Farrell's effectiveness to handle all other manager-employee relations and negotiations. As long as Haddad is mayor, Farrell won't be able to do his job.

Ironically, just before the council meeting, the mayor had reminded us of one of his personal policies: If you can't say anything nice about someone, don't say anything.

We had remarked, "I know; I already learned that bitter lesson." It appears we didn't.

'Control of city hall' at stake in Tuesday vote

Control of Seaside city government will be at issue next Tuesday as voters choose a mayor and two councilmen. Three propositions and 10 advisory measures also will be on the ballot.

The three positions at stake constitute a majority on the five-man council, and the three incumbents running for re-election are seeking to keep the majority in their control. If one of them is defeated, control will go to the so-called anti-Establishment forces, since the two mid-term councilmen are in that camp.

Seven candidates, all veterans of at least one local election campaign, are in the race. Mayor Lou Haddad is seeking his second term as are Councilmen Bud Houser and Emil Schmidt. They are the Establishment, and are running on their records of experience and progress in the city over the last four years, especially redevelopment activity. They say they want to stay in office to complete the projects they've started.

On the other side are Steve Ross, a mid-term councilman, and council candidates, Pearl Carey and Jerry McGrath.

Their slate platform seeks their election "to return control of local government to the people."

The seventh candidate is Richard Hamilton, an artist who got 16 votes in the mayor's race in 1966.

Four other names appear on the ballot, but all have withdrawn from the race. Pete Cruz withdrew in favor of Schmidt and Houser, while Ed Battle, Henry Burney and David Mitchell withdrew in support of Mrs. Carey and McGrath.

The polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. at nine combined precincts.

There are 5,627 persons registered, an increase of 268 over the 1968 city election. But added this year for the first time is Fort Ord, which was annexed to Seaside early in 1969. That precinct lists 287 voters. The turnout in 1968 was about 40 per cent.

The ballot measures include three that will become law if passed by a simple majority of voters. The first asks whether voters want a two-year term for mayor instead of the current four. If passed, the proposition will take effect immediately and the mayor elected next Tuesday will serve for two years.

The other two propositions are related -- one asks if the city council should be allowed to sell the old city hall; the other asks if the council should be allowed to trade the old city hall and adjacent maintenance building for the Pit, on Broadway just west of Noche Buena.

Candidates' night Thursday

The traditional candidates' night put on every election by the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula will have a co-sponsor this year, the International Assembly of Black Women.

The forum, generally considered mandatory by all candidates, will be held Thursday, April 9, at 8 p.m. at city hall.

As usual there will be no direct contact between members of the audience and the candidates. Each candidate will be given three minutes for an opening statement. Questions submitted in writing, screened by a panel and asked by a moderator will follow. Candidates will be given one minute to answer each query. At the close of the forum, the candidates will be given a one-minute summation.

Library plans presented

The architectural firm that designed city hall unveiled schematic drawings for the proposed new city library last week.

The presentation by John Hill of Edward Durrell Stone drew pointed questions from an audience that contained many opponents of the site, adjacent to city hall.

Hill explained drawing that showed the library with some 12,000 square feet of space, capable of holding nearly 60,000 volumes. The plan called for an adult reading room for seating 26 persons, and a children's reading room for 77 persons, a story-hour area, a sunken skylighted lounge area, and a 900 square foot meeting room with small kitchen facilities.

Hill said construction costs for the buidling would probably run $30 per square foot, or between $360,000 and $400,000.

The location of the building in the city hall complex directly east of the current city hall parking lot would require the demolition of two homes on Harcourt, according to City Manager Milt Farrell. The site is in the Laguna Grande urban renewal project but the homes were not marked for demolition. Hillsdale, which comes into Harcourt, would be extended south to Hilby and would run along the east side of the proposed library.

Paredes top citizen

Mike Paredes of Pacific Grove was named Seaside's Citizen of the Month for April last week.

Paredes for years has been the driving force behind Pony and Colt League baseball for Seaside boys. In his capacity as American Legion leader of the leagues, Paredes takes a vacation each year and spends a week of 10-12 hour days preparing for the season.

Public housing, fireworks

City councilmen discussed a new fireworks ordinance and possible public housing last week among many other items on a packed agenda. The fireworks ordinance is a revision of a current one, and among other things, prohibits out-of-town organizations from selling fireworks in the city. Other suggested revisions would include setting a $25 fee for a permit. The matter will be set for a public hearing later.

The public housing discussion grew out of a resolution by the Human Relations Commission calling for the city to undertake some form of public housing as soon as possible.

Councilmen will meet with officials of the county housing authority at their next meeting.

In other business:

—Took under advisement a proposal by Adeline DiLorenzo to join with other groups in the city to produce a television show designed to reverse Seaside's negative image.

—Deeded an approximate seven-square-foot parcel on Olympia to Jack Oldemeyer. Oldemeyer already owned the 16-foot elongated triangle, but surveying errors left legal questions unsettled.

—Referred to the city manager a request by Crocker Citizens Bank to consider placing some city funds on deposit in that bank. The city does its primary banking with Bank of America, the first to establish a branch in Seaside. Mayor Lou Haddad noted that Crocker now has the major share of local urban renewal funds on deposit and complained that the agency had not given any business to the other two branches, United California Bank and Wells Fargo Bank. Councilman Bud Houser suggested that an equitable sharing be sought, attempting to include the redevelopment agency in the sharing.

— Congratulated the police department for having qualified all officers for their highest possible renking under Police Officers Standards and Training testing.

Farrell to hire assistant

City councilmen gave City Manager Milt Farrel the go-ahead to create a new job last week.

They voted 5-0 to allow Farrell to hire an assistant city manager at a salary range of $1100 to $1338 per month.

And in a move interpreted as an added vote of confidence, the council agreed to waive for a reasonable period the time in which Farrell has to find or build a home in Seaside. City code says the city manager must move to the city within 180 days of taking the job. Farrell became city manager last June.

Farrell said it had always been his intention to live in Seaside, but said he couldn't find a suitable house. He is renting now in Pebble Beach, in ahome owned by City Atty. Saul Weingarten, who also lives in Pebble Beach.

The issue is a political one. Several of the candidates in next week's elections have called for ll top city employees to lve in the city.

Election results

The News-Sentinel will delay press time to Wednesday morning next week in order to bring to readers final city elections results.

Seaside mail subscribers will not receive their papers until Thursday, other Peninsula subscribers on Friday.

Newstand copies will be on sale at the News-Sentinel office late Wednesday morning.

Seaside Sales set record in 4th quarter

Seaside's taxable sales set a record and recovered some lost ground during the fourth quarter of last year . . . and that pulled sales for the full year of 1969 nearly back to pre-Del Monte Center days.

October - November - December sales totaled $6,718,000, an increase of $468,000 over the same period of 1968, and bested the previous high of $6,395,000 in 1966. The total for 1969 was $24,295,000, which is some half-million dollars more than total 1968 sales of $23,646,000.

(A sizable portion of the increase can be attributed to the Rol-Seal Manufacturing Co., which was included in the All Other category that jumped by nearly $300,000 in each of the last three quarters.)

The $23,646,000 total for 1969 was still $16,000 short of 1966, the last full year before Del Monte Center opened and Monterey's sales skyrocketed. (The year of 1967 was not complete, because the State Board of Equalization, which compiles the figures, did not keep full records for all 12 categories, and totals were not available for that year. Del Monte Center opened in September of 1967.)

The year of 1969 showed Monterey continuing to collect more and more of the sales tax revenue rebates on the Monterey Peninsula. With total sales of $91,424,000 for the year, that represented 57.9 per cent of the total taxable sales within the cities on the Peninsula. Monterey's pre-Del Monte Center sales in 1966 totaled only $66,251,000, or 51.8 per cent of the Peninsula sales pie. That is an increase in sales of 38.5 per cent in three years.

Monterey also was the only city on the Peninsula to keep pace with the state's sales growth of 9.3 per cent during the fourth quarter. Monterey's increase was 9.8 per cent.

The state statisticians note that nearly 60 per cent of the state's sales growth was inflation. Del Rey Oaks with 8.5 per cent increase in the fourth quarter, Seaside with 7.5, Pacific Grove with 4.8 and Carmel with 2.5 all actually showed little real growth, if any, when the inflationary increase of 5.7 per cent was applied.

The other pieces of the 1969 Peninsula sales pie show Seaside and its $24,295,000 at 15.4 per cent, Carmel at $23,705,000 and 15.0 per cent, Pacific Grove at $10,923,000 and 6.9 per cent, Del Rey Oaks at $5,000,000 and 3.2 per cent and Sand City at $2,797,000 and 1.6 per cent. Total sales in cities on the Peninsula were $158,144,000, an increase of nearly $10 million over the $149,049,000 of 1968. (These totals do not include sales recorded in unincorporated areas of the Peninsula.)

Besides Monterey, only Del Rey Oaks has gained a larger share of the sales tax rebates on the Peninsula since 1966. Monte Mart was not open the full year in 1966.

In Seaside the 12 individual categories had only five individual decreases for 1969 from 1968. Those included Apparel, Drug, and Other Retail stores, which have all declined every year since 1966. The other two showing decreases from 1968 were Home Furnishings and Auto CDealers.

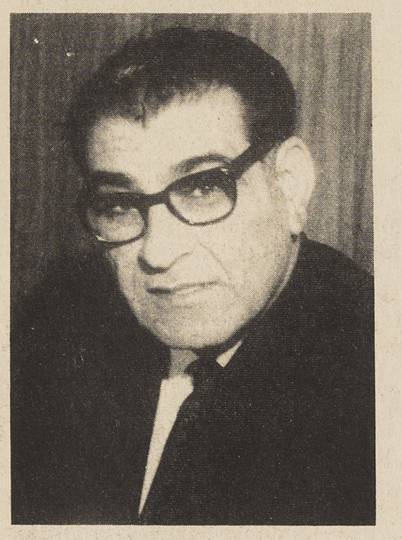
Categories that showed increases from 1968 were General Merchandise, Food, Package Liquor, Eating Establishments, Building Materials, Service Stations and All Other stores. All showed slight increases except the last category, All Other, which includes Rol Seal, and shows an increase of $931,000.

For the fourth quarter alone in Seaside, Apparel showed its first rise in more than three years, and other increases included General Merchandise, Food, Package Liquors, Eating Establishments, Auto Dealers, Service Stations and All Other. Losers for the quarter were Drugs, Home Furnishings, Building Materials and Other Retail.

Monterey's fourth quarter sales totaled $25,099,000, a record for the city. Other Peninsula cities' fourth quarter sales totaled $6,266,000 in Carmel, $3,263,000 in Pacific Grove, $1,512,000 in Del Rey Oaks and $599,000 in Sand City. All were increases over the previous fourth quarter in 1968, except Sand City.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Candidates were allowed 1,000 words to use as they chose. None used the full amount. Only one candidate, Mrs. Carey, chose to answer a question posed last week in an editorial: How would you answer a constituent who has confided in you that racism is a key factor in his ballot decision?

For Mayor



LOUIS N. "LOU" HADDAD, 46, businessman, 2050 Lassen, married, defeated for mayor in 1962, elected councilman in 1964, elected mayor in 1966, seeks re-election.

Haddad

A couple of years ago when I first suggested that the term of mayor be for two years instead of four, I believed that a two-year term was sufficient time to allow a person to implement his programs and also manifest his worthiness for re-election if he chose to run.

I was wrong. Had my term expired after two years, I honestly beieve that I could not have been re-elected. Issues arising in Seaside as well as the rest of the nation were difficult to cope with. Mediocrity could best describe my first half term.

After realizing my mistakes, I decided to re-evaluate my abilities. I devoured volumes of material dealing with our problems. Much soul-searching and practical contact was an everyday circumstance.

Armed with better human understanding and a better knowledge of historical factual material, I set about attempting to rectify my mistakes. Despite a setback in private business, I continued to concentrate more effort upon my elected job.

A review of our needs was necessary. A comparison of revenues to our basic requirements indicated an imbalance. We were short funds to provide the needs the community required and demanded, such as better police protection, equalization of pay of city employees, a new library, newrecreational facilities, more jobs, senior citizens housing, storm drains, undergrounding all overhead wiring, low-cost housing, etc.

Then the question arose; How best to provide these essentials without raising local taxes?

Annexation of Ft. Ord was one answer. Another, the Gateway Automobile Center project, when completed, will provide additional jobs as well as approximately $150,000 annually to city coffers which in turn should serve to lessen the tax burden on property owners.

We adopted a new plan to redevelop Laguna Grande, a long range plan designed to insure future income in order that projected community needs may be met.

This project should play a big part in shaping the destiny of Seaside. With the new freeway, the Canyon Del Rey and Del Monte area will be our front door. The way it is redeveloped will greatly influence our image of the city. The plan envisions a new commercial area and a visitors - commercial, hotel - convention center complex that should provide hundreds of new and diversified jobs to our citizens. This development will increase city revenues hundreds of thousands of dollars.

This plan is not simply a dream. There has been a great deal of interest by developers. Thousands of dollars have been spent by private firms determining their own feasibility.

Urban renewal has been a strong factor in increasing the assessed valuation from $14,496,640 ten years ago to the present $24,420,130. We have turned the corner. The valuation will increase much faster in the future than ever before. There is little left to take off the tax rolls in comparison to new construction contemplated. I will personally discourage any further redevelopment until we are well along into the Laguna Grande Plan, and the upswing is assured.

The city property tax rate, in the face of inflation and higher taxes, is still the same as in 1962-63, the first year of my connection with city government. The overall county rate was $8.34 per $100 of assessed valuation, and Seaside's was $1.55, or 18.58% of that amount.

Today, the overall rate has accelerated to $10.29. Seaside's rate is still $1.55, but only 15.06% of the overall rate. This is quite an achievement, and a clear indication that your elected officials are extremely sensitive to the impact of taxes, and effectively responsible for expenditures.

The outlook for Seaside's future is bright. Our citizens are becoming more prideful of our community. We are leading the way. We are getting things done. Of the 3,275 rehabilitated homes in the state of California, Seaside boasts 25% of these.

We have a model community. We are clearly showing that it is possible for a community made up of people of all backgrounds and cultures to live and work together in harmony and brotherly love.

I have a great deal of faith in Seaside. I believe that the citizens have confidence in this city administration. It is this display of confidence that has supplied the courage to continue this progress.

Seaside's future lies in the hands of the voters.

RICHARD HAMILTON, 45, artist, 1163 Waring, single, defeated for mayor in 1966.

Hamilton

The official duties of a mayor, as I can see them, are to greet newsworthy people at the airport, welcome them to the city, cut ribbons, and visit at council meetings and help decide what should be done about the problems that come before them once a week.

The thing I'm about to say is not meant for any certain individual, parties or city. But usually there are five men on the council. The mayor being the Top Banana, there's usually at least two councilmen who will go along with anything the mayor votes for. So this makes the mayor Boss Man, and anything he says, goes. We really don't need the four councilmen, for they are really just figureheads.

This leaves the mayor alone, to control the people

I don't remember reading too much history, but I've been told that our forefathers came to this country many years ago to get away from this kind of thing.

This country was built on freedom, but the people have lost control. So now the government controls the people. This goes for city, county, state and federal government.

So what do the people do, they vote for someone they don't really know or like, just so that he is the lesser of the two evils; then they sit bank and bitch and moan about what he doing wrong.

This is why I say that we do not need a mayor or council.

We need a committee of 21 people — property owners, businessmen and interested residents of the city, who will meet once or twice a month at city hall, and let them decide and vote on what should be done. This is the only way the people are going to get what they want.

Otherwise, they are going to get what the controller wants.

You ask then, if I feel this way, why do I want to be elected mayor?

Because I know that this Establishment is not going to be changed overnight.

The only way to help get it headed in the direction that it was supposed to be, in the first place, is to join them.

As for greeting visiting firemen at the airport, we could let Miss Rodeo, or some other pretty young miss do this chore. I know I'd rather be greeted by a pretty female anytime, than by a stuffed white shirt with a formal statement.

She could also do the cutting of the ribbons and hand out those huge keys.

That's about it, except, I endorse the people of Seaside.

Richard Hamilton

STEPHEN E. ROSS, 51, corporation manager, 1609 Soto, married, defeated for council in 1962, elected in 1964 and re-elected in 1968.

Ross

The present government of the city of Seaside is in the hands of a small group of men who, in my opinion, are not governing with the best interests of the citizens in mind. It is my belief that a change of administration will not, in itself, bring about the changes which are necessary to put the governing of our city bank into the hands of the people of our city. There must be a really basic change in the philosophy of government, a change which will re-establish a government of, by, and for the people. For how can a government be for the people if it is not of and by the people? How can a government be responsive to the needs of the people if it does not consult the people about their needs? How can a mayor best serve his people if he does not ask his people what they want? And where in the present administration have you seen the people being consulted about their desires?

The current issue of a city library is a perfect example of what I am saying. Here the people did come forth and tell the administration what they wanted; the mayor himself appointed a commission to study the issue and propose a site for the library. But he has not only ignored the voice of the people, he has ignored the voice of his own commission! Is this administration serving the best interests of the people of the city of Seaside? I think not.

It is my belief that new and innovative ideas must be implemented in order to bring the government closer to the people, and If we are to function as a community, we must work together as a community and live together as a community. The mayor's job else. Inorder to do that, it is imperative that he know what the people want. For this purpose, I propose the establishment of a Mayor's Committee on Community Affairs. This committee will hold regular public meetings for the sole purpose of hearing people The citizens will come forth and present to the committee their ideas about the problems that ought to be dealt with by the city government. Furthermore, the citizens will suggest their solutions to these problems. If such a process were now in existence, we would have a city library site of the citizens' own choice, not one which a small group of men in city government deemed acceptable.

The Mayor's Committee on Community Affairs will simply serve as a sounding board for the people of the city; its function will be to gather information from the people, organize it, and present it to the mayor, who will in turn present it to the city council and recommend appropriate action. the committee would also advise on all appointments to existing commissions.

I believe that the establishment of a committee on comunity affairs would be a great step toward bringing about a government which is responsive to the needs of the people, as well as a way of bringing the people closer to their own governing process. If not only serves the people, but actually involves them in the governing process. The people, in a very real way, become their own governors, for it is their own ideas about the problems facing the community, as well as their solutions to those problems, which are presented to the mayor, who in turn presents them to the city council. The position of mayor, through this committee, begins to take its proper place — that of implementor of the people's wishes. And a community begins to emerge — people are working together for their own benefit. Their government serves their needs and not the needs of the individuals within that government administration. And as a community spirit begins to develop, the strength of the people begins to grow. A community is simply people working together, and when people work together, they wield much more power than when they work apart. With community spirit, the people will once again control their own lives; they will once again have a say in what will happen in their community. The government will once again be in the hands of the people. A government that is not responsive to the needs of its citizens is no government at all.

The people of Seaside have a chance to set an example for our county, our state and our nation to follow. We can prove to the nation, and indeed the world, that the people of a small city — of many races — can live, work, and enjoy life together (each respecting the rights and dignity of the other) by all sharing in a truly representative local government. I would like very much to help make this possibility a reality.

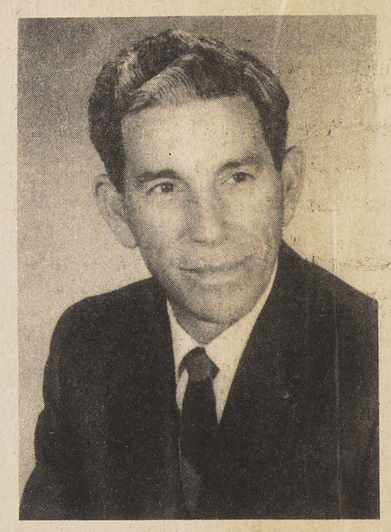
For Council



BERDINE "BUD" HOUSER, 52, apartment house manager, 1105 Kimball, married, elected councilman in 1966, seeks re-election.

Houser

Taxes: While we have held the line at the city level the past four years, increases in county and school taxes have spiraled. I shall continue to exercise fiscal responsibility in this area.

Industry: I will continue to assist in any way possible to attract and locate acceptable industry in the Seaside and Sand City area.

Business: I shall continue to work with the city manager and the Chamber of Commerce to greatly expand our business community.

Jobs: Availability of jobs depends on three important factors: business, industry and training. I also will work toward the establishment of a day-care center for working mothers.

Education: I will continue to pursue vocational and technical programs and facilities geared to the needs of our community. Also I will continue researching ways and means of providing a new library and community center.

Housing: Our housing needs are still critical. I will continue to work with all agencies in new techniques to lower construction costs.

Hospital: We have no medical facility immediately available to us. I shall dedicate my efforts to obtain such a medical facility for our citizens.

Redevelopment: We have much to be proud of from our projects. However, I will not vote for any further programs until we have completed a substantial part of our present projects.

Recreation: Comprehesive studies of our recreational needs are now complete. Location and funding hold the key I shall be guided accordingly.

Law Enforcement: I shall propose a program to reduce crime and burglaries.

Faith: By rededicating our efforts, and with faith in the future, we shall succeed in making Seaside a better place to live.

EMIL C. SCHMIDT, 62, trailer park operator, 1206 LaSalle, defeated for council in 1964, appointed to vacancy and was elected to seat in 1966, seeks re-election.

It is time again for the voters of Seaside to select their representatives for the office of mayor and city councilman.

Being a citizen as well as a candidate, I too must choose candidates that will represe me wisely and well.

In order to aid in the procedure I use the following questions as a criteria or standard:

What has the candidate done for the city? Is it tangible? Was it done in a spirit of service and dedication?

If the candidate has been in office, has he performed to my satisfaction . . . used logic and reason, not emotions, in his deliberations? Has he made definite decisions, not been evasive or even abstained on critical issues? Does he respect the Establishment? Has he upheld the basic structure of the sense of government? Is he dependable?

Does he have a closed mind, or an open mind?

After these questions are reasonably answered, I inquire into the philosophy of the project policies proposed. Does he have compassion for his fellow man? Does he possess what is known as the "long view" for a better city for all of us?

Does he have one particular project that he pursues which is important to all of us, such as beautification, conservation, purification and restoration of the ecology?

And, above all, is he resolute in his resistance to communistic and anarchistic ideologies which are so prevalent?

Is he imaginative in his approach to the new concepts for the future, such as quality homes, at low cost? Is he interested in maintaining the proper relation between density of population and the ecology of our area?

Can he get things done? Can he work with his fellow councilmen?

The economical, social and visual facets of our community are at stake.

I am confident that I am able to select candidates with the above criteria, and I am also confident that I am so qualified, and I hope the concerned voter will arrive at the same logical conclusions, and return me to office.

PEARL M. CAREY, businesswoman, 1231 Olympia, married, defeated for council in 1966 and 1968.

Carey

When running for public office, candidates tend to speak in terms of new services to the city, or eliminating existing services that are no longer effective. It is equally important to look at existing services to determine whether those departments need revamping for more effective service to the people they serve. In talking with members of our local fire department, it seems evident that they need the support of the citizens of Seaside to update their department and conscientious public servants to see that this upgrading takes place. Our fire department has been a class 5 unit since 1957. In addition to fighting fires, they maintain on-going inservice training and drill, issue bicycle licenses and dog licenses, carry on home safety inspections, maintain the city rescue unit, register voters and maintain a fire prevention bureau that conducts fire drills, preventive fire maintenance, and investigates the cuases of fires. In addition to these services, they also run off all printed material for the city hall.

Shorthanded, our department is unable to maintain the proper checks on the 404 hydrants in our two water systems and to make regular mercantile inspections. I would like to suggest three supportive measures for the citizens of Seaside in order to upgrade our fire department.

1. Our resuce unit is a vital but expensive service to the community. The rescue squad should be called only in case of emergencies that cannot be handled readily by first aid in the home. Calling out the rescue squad for cuts, minor bruises and minimal first aid ties up firemen who may be needed for major emergencies and costs the city approximately $15 for each call of this kind.

2. The fire department's hiring practice at this time considers applicants between the ages of 21 and 35. We should be hiring young men at the age of 18 for an apprentice program to train them to the duties required by this department. This would insure us of capable, well-trained firemen and relieve the unemployment rate at the most critical age level immediately following high school graduation.

3. We should urge the city government to fulfill the requirements of the National Board of Underwriters in order to become a class 4 fire department. This would mean increasing each of the thre platoons from the present seven to ten men. The department would then be able to carry out the work they are now unable to complete, such as hydrant checks and mercantile inspections. Your rates for fire insurance would drop appreciably. In areas where such upgrading has taken place, the drop in insurance rates has provided the homeowner with a savings after taxes have paid for the increase fire protection

We must become aware of these needs in our city services, and the affect they have on us as citizens and property owners in a city

This means the most important department in our city is going unattended and without a permanent fire chief. I ask you — why?

Library — we have been led to believe that the city of Seaside owned the property on which they plan to build the library, but it was made perfectly clear at the April 2 council meeting that two homes will have to be purchased in order to have space for the library, as presented by the architect. Therefore, the city does not own all of the land as stated by the city fathers.

These are but two of the issues involved with Seaside politics, but to answer the racism question you proposed:

Racism is in every nook and cranny in this country, and each of us has to deal with it every day of our lives. Both races, as human beings, have the obligation, the responsibility, of helping to correct America's human problems. I will do all in my power to eliminate tensions with the aid and assistance of all people of good will.

I think that the unresponsiveness of our city fathers is the basis of our present problems.

I would propose:

1. Adequate low-cost housing.
2. Equal job opportunities.
3. Meaningful recreation programs for all citizens.

I forsee a return to responsible government with intelligent, honest public officials that are responsive to the needs and wishes of all of the people of Seaside. I think that these needs and wishes have been neglected.

That is primarily the reason I became a candidate for the Seaside City Council.

GERALD A. McGRATH, 49, teacher, 1955 Lincoln, defeated for mayor in 1966.

McGrath

The return of control of Seaside's government to its people is of prime importance in this election. Our citizens have become disenchanted with the present city government and are demanding a change, and a change is what our city needs. The present council incumbents have given up their representative voice to a mayor who has run a one-man government.

Finish Gateway. Finish Gateway, or our city will go bankrupt. If the auto dealers won't come in, open the lots to other businesses.

Finish Gateway. Finish Gateway before Laguna Grande is even considered. Why does the incumbent councilman insist on driving out clean industry that employs people and pays taxes.

I would like to see more open council meetings where people can comment on the actions of their government. There should be less dinner-type council meetings and more council chamber meetings.

Several years ago, our city dedicated a new city hall. Now, the city fathers tell us it's too small. Why can't they plan ahead and stop doing things like amateurs. If our city needs more office space, modify the present building by narrowing the wide hallways and put folding doors in the council chamber and use this space for offices.

The future of Seaside depends upon planning by the council. There should be more productive meetings with other cities of the bay to prevent pollution of our waters.

A positive approach for more contractual service for police and fire protection would be more efficient.

There is much costly duplication of government in the cities of the Peninsula and our council should be making plans for the eventual centralizing of services within the Peninsula.

We are stuck with the fact that the present city hall is in the wrong place. It provides a nice setting for the Department of Motor Vehicles building, but why compound the mistake by dragging other community facilities to the south of town?

Seaside needs a change. The incumbent councilmen boast of their progress, management and experience. How can they give us anything but tax increases for the next four years. It is truly time for a change.

Jerry McGrath

Ask IRS

Q) What's the deadline for sending in my return?

A) April 15 is the deadline for filing 1969 income tax returns for the 1969 calendar year.

Q) Can I use the same check to pay my 1970 estimated installment and my final balance for 1969?

A) It is advisable to write separate checks or money orders since the payments cover two different tax years.

Tax returns for different years are processed separately and it is possible for a single payment covering two taxes to be credited to just one tax year. This could lead to a refund on one return and a bill for additional tax on the other.

When you make your payment, write what it is for and your Social Security number on each check or money order so that it can be properly credited to your account.

Q) I don't see any place on the new 1040 to deduct the $600 I get for each of my exemptions. Where do I take this deduction?

A) Allowances for your exemptions are taken on Line 4, Schedule T, which is in the Form 1040 tax forms package. If you use the Tax Tables to figure your tax, the allowance for exemptions is provided in the tables.

Q) Do I have to pay tax on my GI insurance dividends?

A) No, these dividends are not taxable.

Q) I never had to send in an estimated tax form before, but I got one in the mail this year. Do I have to file it?

A) Generally, you should file an estimated tax return if you do not expect the amount withheld from your wages to come within $40 of the income tax you expect to owe for 1970. Details are in the estimated tax form instructions.

The estimated tax system is meant to help keep all taxpayers on a pay-as-you-go basis. If a taxpayer's income changes during the year, he can make an adjustment in his next installment payment to take care of it.

Q) Are supplementary Medicare premiums deductible?

A) Premiums for health insurance under Medicare are deductible if you itemize expenses on Schedule A. Note that one-half of your cost for medical insurance up to $150 is deductible without regard to the 3 percent limitation on medical expenses. The remainder is subject to the 3 percent rule.

Q) I can't pay all I owe on my 1969 income tax return. Can I pay in installments?

A) Full payment is required by the filing deadline.

Q) I am still paying my daughter's college expenses even though she married last fall. Can I still claim her as a dependent?

A) If she does not file a joint return with her husband and the other dependency tests are met, you may claim an exemption for her. These tests are explained on Page B-2 in the 1040 tax package.

Q) When do you have to send in Schedule T with your tax return?

A) Most taxpayers will use Schedule T only as a worksheet and need not attach it to their Form 1040. Schedule T should be attached if you claim a retirement income credit, investment credit or foreign tax credit. Anyone subject to self-employment tax or tax from recomputing prior-year investment credit must also send in Schedule T.

Q) Can I deduct anything for paying someone to fill out my tax return?

A) Yes, this is deductible as a miscellaneous expense on Schedule A. Remember that fees paid to someone this year for preparing a 1969 return cannot be deducted until you file your 1970 return.

To avoid errors in a return prepared by someone else, check it over for accuracy and make sure that the blue address label is on the form you file.

Q) Where do I send my return? I can't find my envelope.

A) The address of the IRS service center for your area is listed on the back of the first copy of Form 1040 in your tax package.

Q) How can I use the preaddressed label if I've made a mistake on the form it is on?

A) Lift the top label off the form on which you made the mistake and place it on the one you are filing. The two-part label has been made so that the top one lifts off easily but sticks tightly when placed on another form.

Rural highways and roads running through hilly country are haz ardous because hills often have sharp crests, and drivers cannot always see beyond them. A car may be stopped on the roadway just over the crest or an approaching car may be in the wrong lane. When ascending hills, the California State Automobile Association cautions you to slow down to a speed which allows you to stop within your sight distance. Never cross the center line or pass another vehicle when approaching the crest of a hill.

She is an active member of Senior Troop 2136 and serves the community as a volunteer program aide, hospital aide, merchandising aide, and veterinarian aide.

Student Employment Service

At a recent meeting of the Student Employment Service committee, it was reported that 622 students were registered for work during the Easter weekend.

Book Bargains

The annual "Bargains for Books" sale takes place this Friday at the Estrada Adobe on Tyler St. in Monterey, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

This is 7th year that the local Wellesley College alumnae have collected and sold, at temptingly low prices, hundred of books as a fund raising project for scholarships.

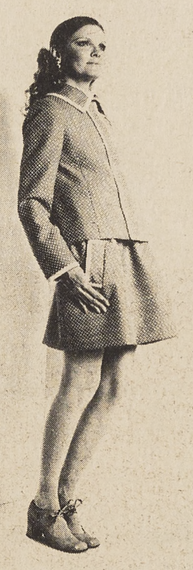
There are volumes covering all interestes from paper back who-dun-its, through novels, histories, books on travel, philosophy, education, hobbies or special interests. There are a few first editions, and complete sets of Irving, Eliot, and Dickens, among others. There are books over a hundred years old, and those written in 1969.

Poetry Offerings

The first of two poetry offerings scheduled this spring by the Monterey Peninsula College English department will feature Edward Field in readings from his own works Monday, April 13, noon to 1 p.m. in the MPC library lecture hall, followed by an hour of student discussion.

The program is open to the public without charge. Visitors to the campus, however, are reminded to obtain visitors' parking permits from the administration building receptionist.

THE 30'S REVISITED—Tom Nasarre for Junior Sophisticates borrows from the 30's for this soft suit look of double woven cotton. The bathrobe tie jacket, stretched to the hip, goes over a long-sleeved shirt and skinny A-skirt.



MOOD OF SPRING — Apple green cotton, dotted and banded in white, is Teal Traina's choice for a soft-edged spring ensemble. The long jacket tops a high-necked dress with sleeveless white bodice and gathered skirt.

Gift to CBC

THE FIRST unit of the Jimmie Reed Memorial at California Baptist College, Riverside, was presented in the form of a piano for the Department of Music at a student assembly. The Yamaha piano from the Redlands Round Table was presented by George Ide, immediate past president, (second from right) to James H. Walker, head of the music department. With Ide are from left, Dr. L.E. Nelson, also a member of Redlands Round Table which had provided a scholarship for the talented young junior who died in an accident as he was returning to his home in Seaside for the Christmas holidays; and Mrs. Richard C. Sheere, Dr. Nelson's daughter. Mrs. Sheere's husband, choral director for Seaside High School, was instrumental in interesting Reed in attending the college where he was a member of the Chamber Singers and the Concert Choir. Because of Reed's dedication to music, the committee chose to make his memorial something of value to the Department of Music. Additional money is being contributed by other friends, faculty and students, for the purchase of one or more pianos. All will cary engraved plaques indicating that they have been given in memory of young Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stelmer Reed, 1384 Darwin, Seaside.

LAW IN ACTION

AIRPLANE RIDER

Charles had taken flying lessons from his friend Al Ace, a licensed instructor. One day Charles was about to make a solo flight when the weather turned stormy. Instead, Charles went up for a ride with Al. The plane crashed and injured Charles, who sued for his injuries.

Al had been negligent, but he claimed in court that Charles had assumed some of the flight risk by going up in a storm. The court ruled that the jury could weigh this defense.

Charles had been more than an innocent "passenger" since he knew about flying and knew his risks in a storm. If so, the judge said, Charles has himself also to blame for his injuries, and cannot collect damages.

The law puts riders in two classes when riding in a car, boat, or airplane. You are either a "passenger" or a "guest," and your legal rights in an accident often hinge on which of these kinds of riders you are.

A paying "passenger" has a legal right to ride without negligence on the part of the driver. A negligent driver is liable for his passenger's injuries.

But the "guest" who rides without paying has only a right to damages if the driver is drunk or is wilfully reckless. The "guest" assumes the risk of "ordinary" negligence. The guest, to win a damage suit, often has to show the court that he did not know of the driver's drunkenness or inclination to be wilfully reckless. If he knew, he has no legal claim.

When several people go into a joint venture, each legally becomes the other's guest. Thus, the law assumes that the share-the-ride arrangement, a pleasure trip with shared expenses, or the car pool, are motivated by friendship or companionship. Such riders are not "passengers," entitled to "ordinary" care, but "guests" who take greater risks.

A regular airline passenger has a legal right to a high degree of care, and a student pilot, as the teacher's customer, has a right to have an instructor who is reasonably prudent.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

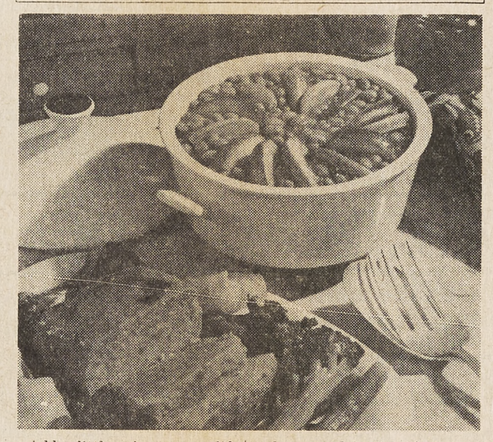
Beans and Spice are Nice



Add a little spice to your life of winter-weary meals. Spice Pot Beans along with Honeyed Luncheon Loaf make a dinner that's easy to prepare, economical, and just plain brimming with goodness.

Canned pork & beans with tomato sauce is the secret of this surprising meal. Just open a can and you'll see why. The tender pea beans are nestled in a rich tomato sauce that's cooked right down into the heart of each bean . . . the beans taste as good as the sauce.

Try this oven meal when your coffers are low; your time schedule tight. Just open two cans of pork & beans with tomato sauce, spice them with cinnamon and allspice. Then arrange the beans in a casserole with alternate layers of fresh apple slices.

The bake-along luncheon meat loaf with its coating of honey and mustard is a perfect complement to the beans.

SPICE POT BEANS

2 cans (16 ounces each) pork & beans with tomato sauce
Generous dash allspice
Generous dash cinnamon
2 medium apples, thinly sliced

Combine beans and seasonings. In 1½-quart casserole, layer beans and apples beginning with beans and ending with apples. Bake at 350° F. for 40 minutes or until hot. Makes 4 servings.

HONEYED LUNCHEON LOAF

1 can (12 ounces) luncheon meat
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon prepared mustard

Place meat in shallow baking pan. Bake at 350° F. for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, combine honey and mustard. Spread over meat. Bake 10 minutes more. Makes 4 servings.
